ABOUT THE

Canadian Radiotheranostics Leaders' Summit 2026

The Summit is an annual 2-day event held by the Canadian Nuclear Isotope Council (CNIC), the Canadian Medical Isotope Ecosystem (CMIE), and a consortium of leading academic centers (UHN, LHSC, BC Cancer, and CAMH) that aims to bring together leaders from across the isotope supply chain, business and investment leaders, clinicians and patient partners, governments at all levels, students, and more, to shape the future to best serve patients.

New and Emerging Trends

More opportunities to discuss new and emerging trends, research, and applications

Network Building

400+ leaders from the radioisotope, healthcare, research, student, and policy communities

WHY ATTEND THE

Canadian Radiotheranostics Leaders' Summit 2026

Purpose of the Summit

The Canadian isotope industry is experiencing tremendous momentum. Collaboration has allowed for cutting-edge innovation and technologies to resolve supply challenges and produce emerging isotopes. As such, Canada is developing an ecosystem with a broader scope, drawing expertise from across the medical community, the isotope production chain, and the radiopharmaceutical industry. The medical community is heightening the value of radiotheranostics through high quality clinical trials, which are starting to show proof of improved cancer patient survival. Effectively incorporating radiotheranostics into cancer care requires transdisciplinary collaboration of highly-skilled professionals along with dedicated infrastructure.

While Canada does possess much expertise already, innovative models of care, infrastructure, and patient partnerships are needed to translate this exciting science into access to care and improved survival from cancer.

This Summit brings together all of the pieces necessary to take a unified leap together for the future of cancer care.

“The spirit of cooperation and interest was tangible”

Key Objectives

This two-day event will allow leaders to:

- Ensure their views on the broader ecosystem are heard and understood
- Express their concerns or raise awareness about challenges to the sector
- Learn how government is responding to these challenges with policies and programs
- Provide input into a coordinated strategy to secure Canadian isotope supply chains, innovation, and a thriving health care sector
- Learn about up-to-date research, emerging clinical applications, and innovative infrastructure projects
- Understand how key players can enable transformation and best support the Canadian radiotheranostics community

“The Summit offers an incredible opportunity to network and learn from those working all across the country and beyond to deliver lifesaving isotopes to the world.”
